JUDGE GARY, head of the big steel company, will be eighty years old next month, and Wall Street asks, "Will he retire?"

A great business man? A thinking mind, not a little jumper. Why should he retire? Kipling ran the British Parliament when he was past eighty. Van Moltke ran the German army when past eighty. Pope ran the worldwide Catholic Church at eighty.

WHY SHOULD Judge Gary retire in the prime of life? Many of his friends can testify to his perfect health and great energy.

If that be the result of old age.

many corporations would like some of that old age.

WHAT MAN WANTS to do, he can do. A little while ago the noble bloom was dying out, everyone had said farewell to him. Now the government, with herds of sheep on its hands, offers you a vigorous live bloom for $5, that you couldn't have bought for $5,000 a little while ago.

RUDYARD KIPLING does not like us, and tells us about it in poetry, bag'ning:

M. W. BURLIN DIES AT HIS POST OF DUTY

Melchior W. Burlin, chairman of the board of Election commissioners and quarter-century veteran in the city service, died suddenly in his office in City Hall annex today from an attack of acute pneumonia.

He had with heart failure for many days, the election chairman seventy-four years old, nevertheless went to his post through daily difficulty to the primaries and kept bright on.

The veteran worked through primary day on nerve alone, repeated again yesterday when the rain of the protest demands began, and reported at his office today.

He told his associates that he felt worse today than he had been in feeling. A short time later he crumpled in his office.

He was the pine wood today. It was Sheriff Cummings who, weary from the case, overtook the wanderers on their previous errand.

'BES' IN DOUBLE ELOPEMENT

SECOND BOY AND GIRL VANISH

Ellsworth, Me., Sept. 16.—Not just an elopement, but a double elopement is that upon which Nellie Piper and Dave Coughlin, modern "Babes in the Woods," are engaged. It was indicated today as the pair were hunted "down" in their fled flight for love.

The theory now told is that Nellie and Dave slipped into the woods apparently, not each other, went to the same place and there were picked up in an automobile containing Colby Fox, 23-year-old Ellsworth youth and a Bangor girl who has been working in the woods.

Fox, after hiring an automobile, disappeared with it at the same time that Nellie and Dave vanished. The Bangor girl also was missing when the other three vanished last Tuesday.

Young Fox is a clerk at the Coughlin, was a high school student and was with Nellie and Dave and a trusted employee of the Throton Farm Products Co.

Continued that love at last has found a way and that Nellie and Dave are not in the vicinity of Maine, where they were found after their previous venture the deputy sheriff and outlaws' posse, together with the police dog, abandoned the search there today.

It is thought now that they have been spirited into Canada, via Maine and St. Stephen, in the automobile with Nellie and Dave's girl.

Steele, from the basement of high school life and adolescent boredom under home discipline, Nellie and Dave are believed to be conquering marriage as the climax of their newest venture into lands strange to them, and their parents are anxiously endeavoring to block this step.

As on their previous two flights when Nellie and Dave croaked near Washington County, they were first thought to have fled again this way into the domain of Sheriff James A. Cummings, who began a hunt for them in the pine woods today.

It was Sheriff Cummings who, weary from the case, overtook the wanderers on their previous errand.

JONES LEADS EVANS IN NATIONAL TOURNNEY

By BILL GRIMES
Baltimore Golf Club, Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 16.—Bobby Jones was 2 up on Chick Evans at the end of nine holes, George Von Elm 6 up over Watts Grant for oldtime, and the New England pair, Francis Quimet and Freddie White, were all even on the outward nine.

George Dawson has a double advantage over Eddie Holt in the battle of lians which is being waged here today in the quarter finals of the National Amateur Golf championship.

This title is the object of terrific attacks launched by a quartet of champions. Two of these, Quimet and Evans, are former holders of the title now at stake, while a third, the phenomenal Bobby Jones, is a present incumbent.

The fourth champion is Fred Wright, the amateur titleholder of New England.

These quarter finals found the

CHARGES U. S. FREED PRISONER WANTED IN SACCO FIGHT FOR LIFE

Attorney William G. Thompson declared today in Superior Court at Dedham that Joe Morelli, one of the gang accused by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense in the motion for a new trial, was recently freed on parole by the United States government in spite of the fact that the Department of Justice knew of his importance in the present proceedings.

Continuing his long argument for a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted nearly six years ago of the murder of a South Braintree policeman, Thompson ascribed the guilt to the Morelli gang and declared that Joe Morelli was given his freedom from the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., after serving half of a 12-year sentence.

SEEK TO PROVE 'BRIBE CHECKS' DESTROYED

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—The government today turned its attention to establishing proof of its allegations that bank records it contends would show that Harry M. Daugherty participated in division of fees of $441,000 paid for refund

The fee was paid to John T. King, late Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, Richard Merton, the government's chief witness,

Most of the records the government alleges were destroyed were in the Midland National Bank at Washington Courthouse, Ohio, of which Daugherty's brother, Mal S. Daugherty, is president.

Early in 1932, he said, Daugherty and Smith moved from the H street

At this time, Miller said, he ceased to be butler for Daugherty and Smith and took a job in the filing division of the Department of Justice, where he worked for about a year before going back to serve

Daugherty as butler.
 "Who gave you the job in the Department of Justice?" Assistant United States Attorney Kenneth F. Simpson asked.

"BABES" ENJOYING SQUARE MEAL

SINNERS WILL KNOW THEY ARE WATCHED, SAYS SUNDAY

W. B. Sunday

I am greatly interested in letters that I receive from earnest women, readers of this newspaper, concerning the Hall-Mills murder mystery, its moral aspects and the question it raises, as to our degree of civilization and real Christianity.

"What do you REALLY think about the church and church people, after this disgraceful Hall case?"

"First of all, under that old crabapple tree, they find a man and a woman side, by side, murdered."

"The man is a preacher of the Gospel, the woman a singer in the choir of his highly respectable Protestant Episcopal Church."

"The next thing you read that reluctant witnesses have been found who now admit that they were in that solitary country lane together, at night, when the deadly pistol shots were fired. And the State expects to solve the murder mystery with the help of these witnesses."

DEFENSE OF WITNESSES

"And who ARE they, out together and reluctant to tell anything about it? One is a church vestryman, the other a woman who sings in the choir of the vestryman's church."

"So you have the murdered couple, a CLERGYMAN and his CHOIR SINGER, the witness couple, out in the same neighborhood, the same night, a VESTRYMAN and a LADY CHOIR SINGER. Their errand in that country lane after dark may have been most respectable. I don't say it wasn't."

"But I ask you, dear Mr. Sunday, what is the Church coming to, what is the condition of Christian morals when in a dreadful murder mystery a respected clergyman and his choir singer supply the CORPSES, a vestryman and another choir singer supply the witnesses?"

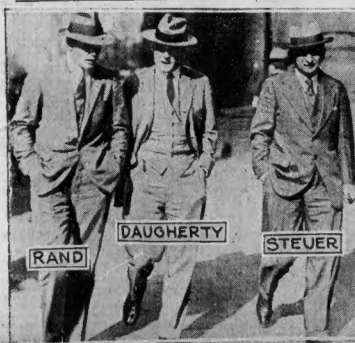

"You read about dozens of other witnesses near that old crabapple tree and the pig farm. How many were in that country lane that night? What were they DOING there?"

"How many of these were church members? I think the world has come to a pretty pass when the Church, established to save souls, comes to supply to newspapers the murder mysteries of the day."

(Signed) "MRS. W. B. L."

COOLIDGE ARE 'PACKING UP'

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Preparations for President Coolidge's departure for Washington Saturday were going forward today at White Pine Camp and the Summer executive offices.

There was comparatively little packing to be done, for the President's household, except of personal clothing, for Mrs. Coolidge brought with her to the vacation camp only the White House items. In other respects she found the Summer quarters well furnished. The executive offices remain open today and tomorrow, although no mail will be forwarded from Washington, after tonight.

JUROR TELLS OF O'BRIEN'S ADVICE TO GRAFT JURY

"They are getting away with murder." District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien told the Grand Jury that returned indictments in the alleged $2,000,000 graft probe in city paving contracts, a grand juror testified today in Suffolk Superior Court, in the light of the defendants to show irregularity in the jury's procedure.

Jessiah L. Lynch, a chauffeur, of South Boston, and one of the grand jurors in the probe, testified to this, after another grand juror had been ordered from the witness stand by Judge Raymond.

The fifteen officials of the Warren Brothers Company and Central Construction Company, under indictment, have entered a plea in abatement, charging the district attorney's office with irregularity.

Thomas J. Gethina, another grand juror, of No. 18 Gardner street, Allston, had just begun to testify when Judge Raymond ordered him to step down from the witness stand.

Judge Raymond took this action when Attorney Damon E. Hall, counsel for the Warren Brothers Company, questioned him concerning Grand Jury secrets. Judge Raymond objected to revealing secrets of the juryroom.

Recurrent clashes between counsel marked the hearing. Objections were raised constantly.

When Lynch was asked to tell what District Attorney O'Brien had said to the Grand Jury that brought the indictment, he quoted the prosecutor as follows:

"They five defendants have been getting away with murder. It must be stopped. I am going right after them, no matter what people in the street may say regarding it being a political move. I have this duty to perform and I am going through. If the thing is not stopped, it will mean a loss of $2,000,000 of the people's money."

At the opening of the session Assistant District Attorney Timothy Callahan, at a conference at the bench, argued that the defendants should present their charges in affidavit form and that the court should direct them to do so.

Judge Raymond, however, said that he would not order affidavits filed at the time.

SERVICES OPEN B. U. COLLEGE YEAR

With students representing every State in the Union and many foreign countries, Boston University opened its fifty-fifth college year today.

The registration of students is still going on. Several thousand students attended the opening exercises. A procession of faculty members and students, headed by President Daniel L. Marsh, preceded the exercises at the College of Practical Arts and Letters, while similar exercises were held later at the College of Liberal Arts.

Coincidental with the opening of the university, it was announced that an evening course leading to a degree of Master of Business Administration would be opened in the graduate division. The degree will be conferred after the graduate has completed either a year's day course or a two-year course in night class.

HUB MENACED BY WHISKERS!

On the subject of whiskers and other facial fashions an ill wind soured through the Hub today, playing a mournful dirge along the fringe.

Boston's barbers may strike, to the detriment of the great open faces where men are not only men, but stylish.

It will be a close shave whether or not the journeymen chin choppers relinquish the razors and caulk the clippers, as Bostonians favoring a clear outlook are a bit Dundreary.

Far from the maddening crowd's ignoble like the tulipate fronts of past years have departed, but there is every likelihood that they will come back after next Wednesday if the draft drivers hold to their purpose and clutch Boston by the short hair.

Hanging gardens draped down from underneath the eye will be cultivated anew and the lace leaders of a decadent age will be rung in once more in the absence of tonorial safe-ties.

From behind the waving waves, Bostonians will look like a posse heading through the woods, but never getting them behind them.

With the journeymen barbers gone at last on a journey away from the shop, the job-hatted dandruff will flourish atop and anew and they will contend again for a little more years to train the truculent tresses.

When the males may have veritable craniums about the supply of hair cut out and there be no way to trim with a neat and even edge. Hope the journeymen barbers journey.

Rudy Bared Heart in Letters to Girl

Peggy Booth, the young actress who you found dead in a London flat and is believed to have taken her life, while grieving over the death of Rudolph Valentino, longed to be married to the star. Her letters and Rudy's replies reveal the deep affection each had for the other. The second and final installment of these expressions of love is printed today.

(Copyright, 1926, by the World-Wide News Service, Inc., Boston, Mass.)

It seemed to have dawned on Valentino that there was danger of the affair going too far, for we find him writing to the girl: "I beg of you, do not be carried away by enthusiasm born of your happy associations. It is necessary to look back to the future."

"It may sound brutal if I say it, but it is none the less true, that you are not fitted by Nature with the qualities that make for greatness in film work. It may seem cruel to say so now, but it would be more cruel to let you go on as you are doing, haggard, this delusion. Therefore, I speak plainly, and I hope you will take to heart what I say."

"I think it right you should understand clearly that there can be no association between us as husband and wife, or as artistic partners, the two directions in which you suggest we should link our lives."

This letter produced from the girl a passionate protest against the isolation between the shark and "Pola Negri." In his reply Valentino says: "Shut out of your mind the idea that Pola Negri is in any sense your rival. She has never appealed to me as the woman that you appeal to, and she will never fill in my life the place you have filled. If only I would believe that and be content with it, everything would be well, but seemingly you cannot, and will not, be content."

Rudy Helpless

"Did you possess ten times the talent you do, you would find that the mere fact of your name being linked with mine would nullify against you, and you would be expected to show creations from the start."

The receipt of this letter seems to have upset the girl a great deal. For there are indications that she abandoned herself to riotous living, and even fell back on drugs, a vice which she seems to have acquired shortly after meeting Valentino.

The shock seemed to think that he was in some way to blame for the girl's fall in this respect. In a letter he says: "I believed I am beyond measure at what your letters suggest, and friends arriving here tell me. Hope is a terrible craving, and a cure that has destroyed many souls and bodies. Fresh in my mind is the fate of poor—my wife, and I beg, if you have any thought for me or my happiness, to cut the thing out."

"I blame myself every hour of my life when I think that you have required the habit through mistaking with the set to which I introduced you when we first met. I did not realize then how far they had gone in that direction, and even now I find it difficult to grasp it all."

In another letter recalling their associations in London and Paris, after the meeting on the Riviera, Valentino says: "You are just a wonderful kid. You bring joy and gladness into my life, but no one else ever did. You left me I do nothing but sit here and try to live over again the happy hours we spent together, warming our hands at the big fire of real life."

PROVIDES FOR HER

"I wonder if you realize that the artistic temperament cannot live in subjection. If only I were sure you made no real claim on me, I could love you forever, and be happy beyond measure in the thought of seeing you from time to time, but it is so different. You want me to assert claims on me. Then the artist's fight for his freedom."

A moment was reached in the association when the girl was baring on the hopelessness of her life apart from Valentino.

To the letters in this strain he replies at once, reiterating the hopelessness of the idea that they can be associated as partners in any sense of the word. He goes on: "It is not my wish that you should want for anything but eyes. I want you to have everything in this life necessary to your happiness, and you have only to say the word and I will see that these things are yours."

"I have written to you, and he says he is arranging your flat and your allowance so that you may never want for anything."

HIS LOVE FOR CHILDREN

"Shortly I shall be back in Europe and we can resume the old happy days, but I want you to understand that you will spoil everything if you persist in this idea of partnership of any kind. Think this over carefully and remember that our happiness is bound up with your answer. I have thought a great deal over this and my mind is made up."

A quarrel followed this letter, and the girl once again abandoned herself to drug taking and the life against which she had been warned by Valentino. For many months they did not correspond, but at last the girl broke the silence and in his reply Valentino said: "It was good to hear from you again, and great to find that you had realized the folly of taking offense at my plain speaking. You have been in my thoughts all day, and we parted and I long for the day when we can settle down to a happy relation."

TELLS OF ILLNESS

Rare are the persons in which he dwells on his own illness, but it is a mistake to assume that he was blind to the fact that he had contracted a complaint that would ultimately end his days. In one letter he speaks of the pain from which he suffers and says: "The doctors seem disposed to hide the truth from me, but somehow I feel that the matter is worse than they tell me, and I fear that one day I shall feel my bed never to rise again. I feel that it would be a great mercy on the part of the good God were I to pass like that in my sleep."

Only a few weeks before his fatal illness there is a letter in which he returns to the suggestion of drug taking by the girl.

You do not understand, and I doubt if you ever understand," he says in another letter to the girl, "if me the most precious moments of all the happy days we spent together were the days when we spent nothing of that grown-up stuff that seems always to poison the wells of existence."

Over and over again I live those days, and when they could continue forever. Why would you spoil them by this talk of partnership? Don't you realize that the artistic temperament was never made for home-ages, and the mere suggestion of union of this sort suffices to x'd the love there is in my heart for you? I like to think of you as my playmate, and it is great happiness so to think. Do not spoil it."

SUNDAY SAYS, "JUDGE NOT" MRS. HALL

My first answer is Judge not, that he be not judged.

My second answer is, don't worry about that country lane or that country tree. There are thousands of such lanes on the earth, and millions of sinners. And the eye of the Lord sees every sin of them. They don't believe it now, they will believe it later and wish that they had believed it sooner.

The Angel Gabriel writes down all that we do, all that we think. What we call strange mysteries here, are clear as daylight above.

I observe in many letters written by women expressions of sympathy for Mrs. Hall, widow of the murdered clergyman. Many express the hope that no matter what may be proved, she will not be punished.

Many indicate they believe the sin of infidelity committed by Dr. Hall is actually worse than the crime of murder, inflicted upon him and his companion, by persons unknown.

AS TO MRS. HALL

I do not believe, I cannot conceive that any crime will be proved against the widow of Dr. Hall. I agree with women writers that the tragedy which has befallen this woman is a saddest more than has ever befallen from the bullet that "red" hit.

But that is no reason or excuse for murdering murder. One sin does not make another any the less hideous.

THESE QUESTIONS

There are some questions that I should like to have answered by you, that read these articles.

FIRST—Is infidelity in marriage more frequent than it used to be?

SECOND—Is it, what a saddest do women realize their husband's infidelity and wish at it?

THIRD—How many married women are afraid to complain?

FOURTH—What do you think is the fate of Dr. Hall and his

LOUISE GIEST RIEHL

DO NOT WORRY ABOUT

FIFTH—What punishment would you inflict on those that did the killing?

SIXTH—Do you believe that the sins of the murdered man and woman should diminish the punishment of those that killed them?

BUT DON'T WORRY
To the anxious, worried woman who writes me I say very earnestly,

The future of religion among various churches is in the hands of the Lord. And there is now in HIS affairs.

MILLS AND WIFE QUARRELED OVER HALL

(Editor's Note: What did James Mills, poor church sexton, think of the love affair between his wife and the Rev. Edward Hall? What did he feel when Mrs. Mills told him of her affection for the rector? Did Mrs. Mills herself feel any guilt or shame? The powerful real life drama of human hearts is revealed in all its tragic details by Charlotte Mills, daughter of the woman who was murdered with the Rev. Hall years ago. No one interested in life can afford to miss a word of this thrilling story.)

CHAPTER XII. LOVE UNSHAMED

Copyright, 1929, King Vebster and Son.

I can never remember that mother took an attitude of shame or guilt in regard to the love I now existed between her and Mr. Hall.

She never made a secret of her fondness for the church and I have heard her say dozens of times that she would never give it up till she died. Neither did she make a secret of her affection for Mr. Hall.

My father's attitude, as far as I could judge, was a curious one. His nature is peculiar; I never understood it very well; always wondered what was passing in his mind, and why he did certain things the way he did them, he might have seen it would lead to trouble.

There were few actual quarrels between mother and father on the subject of the church or the pastor; the quarrels were usually

RIVAL RADIO FANS FIGHT FOR OWNERSHIP OF AIR

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—A suit to determine who owns air above an apartment house will come up for final hearing in the court tomorrow, a legal dispute growing out of radio rivalry involving two tenants and a landlord.

Norman Brenner enjoyed all the privileges of a radio fan until Fred Marchon, a radio engineer, moved in with a transmitting set. Brenner could get nothing on his set while the engineer broadcast.

He registered complaints with the landlord, Jacob Lowenberg, but the latter supported Marchon, who paid a sum for roof rights, sending Brenner's aerial down. Brenner, backed by the Broadcast Listeners' Association, took the case to court, suing Lowenberg for $1,000.

SENATOR URGES PROBE OF DEBT PROPAGANDA

Washington, Sept. 16 (A.P.)—Former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, in a statement today, urged Congress to investigate the sources of foreign propaganda in the country, especially those agencies propagating the cancellation of European debts.

In arguing against cancellation, he said, "The Congress owes it to the American people to reveal the fact" as the "gigantic wealth of Europe can easily pay the debt and abundant time has been given by this government."

MILLS AND WIFE QUARRELED

about money or how an children were to be brought up. Mother insisted I should learn on at high school and father didn't think it necessary.

On Each Other's Nerves

For years my parents were out of sympathy and almost like strangers. And yet that last year, either for mother was a great stickler for my being respectful and obedient to father, she was fond of him, I guess.

Anyhow, she knew she owed him certain kind of loyalty if nothing else, and although they got terribly on each other's nerves and would separate ways as much as possible, there weren't any real battles between them, as has been recklessly said in some newspaper stories—throwing plates and vases and hitting each other!

I confess I saw mother's side better than father's. Mother and I thought alike about practically everything. I don't believe father intended to be cruel, but he must have felt mother's indifference and disappointment in him, and her contempt for his lack of ambition and get-up-and-go, and he liked to tease and annoy her sometimes.

He had irritating ways of saying and doing things and if you said him to stop, instead of saying "aren't you afraid for silliness, he says right on till you're wild."

Mother Flared Up

If mother used to "slap back" sometimes, we can blame her. I certainly never did. There are lots to everyone's patience and endurance. I hated to see her flare up, but she or I, I have never seen her turn on him in desperation and say: "I'll give you!"

Half a little flange said for your whole body?"

And I couldn't feel so shocked as you might expect me to.

You see, I loved Mr. Hall myself so much. For a long while after the murders I had the strangest feeling of wanting to go out to the cemetery where he is buried, and kneel down and talk to him. If I could have dug down into the ground and drawn him away from the very grave and put my arms around him and loved him, it would have been a relief.

It was a wild idea. But you get wild ideas and only one of them stays. You stay alone night after night, thinking over what I had to think off. I always thought of Mr. Hall when I was a kid as a man who would be a perfect father.

They say some women are "born mothers." Well, he was a "born father." Life would have been just one long happiness if he could have brought him and mother and I together and let us stay that way forever.

Believes in Fate

I have thought about it so much that I have come to believe that all that everything happens by an irresistible force, that it has to happen and nothing can change it. It may seem foolish for a girl of 20 to say she is "fateful," but I am sure, and I have been through enough to make me so.

It was the terrible fate of my mother and the man who loved her and whom she loved, to die by pistol shots from somebody in a fit of anger. It had to be. If they had lived, they would have been too happy.

I have always felt that whoever killed them did not intend to do first, I should not at all. I should have loved them, knowing where they were, and started a war. One would lead to another till a terrible war was on.

I can just picture my mother in such a situation. I know what she would have done that day. She would tell everything and take the consequences. She would have said to the whole world, "I believe in fate."

I believe that what they said caused such furious anger and resentment that before the others realized it, the shots had been fired and nothing could have prevented it.

Who Out Throat?

As for the cutting of my mother's throat, no one could ever convince me I am wrong about who did that. I shall never be able to prove it, but I shall always know, just as sure as if my mother had told me.

I believe they pushed the leaves no around their bodies, thinking that in that spot where so few people ever want to walk, they wouldn't be found by any of their neighbors. The two people who were mother and Mr. Hall had gone away together "whenever."

They would not have gone together. But even if they had, they would not have been ashamed of their love. They knew they couldn't help feeling so, and that even though they loved their people, their feeling was right.

(Continued) Charlotte Mills tells her mother was frightened by a strange look on Mrs. Hall's face the day before Mrs. Mills was murdered with the Rev. Edward Hall.

What do the retailers

On Sunday, when their stores are closed, hundreds of thousands of dealers, as well as 22,000,000 consumers, are influenced by the advertisements in The American Weekly.

read and when?

SIX DAYS a week the retailer is a very busy man. His store is constantly open; in certain lines of business, particularly the grocery and drug trades, it is not closed until late at night. He is continually engaged with the multifarious details of stock, sales and merchandise. For six days a week he has no time to read; he scarcely has time to breathe.

Sunday, the day of rest

But when Sunday morning rolls around, the retailer takes a well-earned rest. He sits at home and relaxes. He seeks ease for his body and recreation for his mind. He lights a cigar and reads the Sunday newspaper.

The Sunday newspaper is the gateway to the attention of the busy retailer. In 5,000,000 American homes, all over the country, the Sunday newspaper is a Hearst newspaper. And in every one of these 5,000,000 Sunday editions the heart, the backbone, of the paper is The American Weekly.

The American Weekly is a complete magazine printed in newspaper form. It has every feature that a good magazine should have—fiction, articles, news features, fashions, household department, plus the newspaper's distribution and flexibility. It is the favorite periodical in 5,000,000 homes, in which there are 22,000,000 people—one-fifth the total population of the United States! All of these people are consumers; a goodly proportion of them are retailers.

The one favorable time

Every one of these retailers reads The American Weekly carefully and thoroughly, because it reaches him at the only time when he is in a receptive mood. On Sunday, and only on Sunday, does he have the time or inclination to read. And The American Weekly is so bright, so interesting and attractive, that he wants to read it.

Maximum pulling-power

Advertisements in The American Weekly appear next to the liveliest, most fascinating reading matter in the world. The retailer, like any other reader, is powerfully influenced by them. The products which he sees advertised in The American Weekly are the products which he stocks and pushes. They are the products for which he knows there will be a strong and steady demand!

The manufacturer who wishes to influence the dealer can make his advertising doubly effective by using The American Weekly. For this one publication is of course read not only by merchants, but by a tremendous section of the consuming public as well—approximately 14,700,000 persons of reading age, who buy not only for themselves, but for 7,300,000 others too young to read.

True advertising economy

Yet The American Weekly is not an expensive advertising medium. In proportion to its circulation—the largest in the world—its rates are the lowest of any large-scale publication: $8 per line, $1.69 milline, $14,500 per page (black - and - white), $15,000 inside color page, $16,000 back cover in color. And it is the only national medium in which the advertiser can take a full-size newspaper page in color.

Write today for complete data on the greatest magazine circulation in the world, to The American Weekly, A. J. Kobler, President. Address the office nearest you. See below.

The American Weekly has its peak circulation where the buying power is heaviest—in the fourteen American cities having one-fifth of the total manufactures, three-fourths of the total bank clearings, one-third of the urban population of the United States.

WORKERS GET BEST WAGES IN HISTORY

By BERT FORD.

Wage earners are better paid at present than at any time in the history of labor and their dollar goes further, Christian J. Hill, director of the Department of Management and Labor, told delegates today at the annual national business conference at Madison Park.

"During the first six months of this year," said Mr. Hill, "wages have dropped from 7.5 per cent. last December to 1.5 per cent. above the same level in June. This means that each dollar of the worker is buying more than it did six months ago and six months from now a corresponding increase in the purchasing power of a dollar should be maintained."

RENTS LOWER.
"This drop is due to the fact that rents and the cost of clothing are both on the decline and that the retail cost of foodstuffs is also going to show a slight drop in the period ahead."

"Wages are seasonally beginning to increase after a decline of several months. They should hold up well through the Christmas season and after a slight drop about New Year's, might continue at present or even higher levels well into the spring."

"While the next general movement in wages will be downward, it does not look to me any more reductions of any significance to industry generally taking place within the next six months. Wages increase, however, are over. The wage line for the present has been stabilized. This advance movement of wages actually means, however, an increase in the purchasing power of the wage-earner's dollar because living costs are coming down."

STRIKES FEWER.
"Industrial strikes have been fewer during the first eight months of 1926 than in any similar period during the past twelve years. The present year will go down in the industrial history of the United States as establishing a new peace record in American industry."

Russell E. Winslow, chairman of the United States Board of Mediation, discussed the sanguinary purpose of the Wagner-Parker bill which became law in May. The bill creates a board of conciliation and industrial disputes which may arise in the railroad industry and in the coal, oil, and gas industries. It was passed by a majority of a majority of railway companies and employees.

DEMOCRATS TO ABOLISH TWO-THIRDS RULE

Chicago, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Success of the movement within the Democratic party to abolish the two-thirds rule for national conventions was predicted today by the national committee members of Iowa who have been leaders in the movement since its inception early this year.

Clyde T. Herring of Des Moines and Mrs. Madge O'Neill of Columbus Junction, Iowa, the Iowa members, issued a statement showing that 48 members of the national committee have pledged themselves to the adoption of the majority rule in all future conventions, and predicting that an overwhelming majority of the convention vote of 1928 would be behind the movement on the basis of this figure.

Since the agitation for the non-adoption of the two-thirds rule began in the Iowa committee last January, the statement said it had been endorsed by such national party leaders as John W. Davis, the 1924 standard bearer; William G. McAdoo, Norman H. Mack, New York national committeeman; Charles A. Gresham, of Indiana, secretary of the national committee; and Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, chairman of the 1924 convention.

The Iowa committee members have a chance after the Democratic state committee had instructed them to work for majority rule. The Iowa committee members of virtually every state.

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (A.P.)—Eyebrows are to play an important role in the coming year for American women. In the opinion of Harry B. This means that the eyebrows, which have been neglected for so long, must be given the same attention as the hair.

"HUMAN FLY" CLIMBS

5-STORY LOWELL BLOCK
Lowell, Sept. 14—A crowd of 5000 stood around the Lowell block when George P. Fly, "The Original Human Fly," climbed the 5-story Railroad Bank building. The stunt was performed in the interest of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Fly had little difficulty negotiating the 5-story building. At intervals he appeared to lose his grip and women screamed as he seemed destined to crash to the sidewalk below. It all went off with a trick, however. Fly was safely hoisted as he went through his final evolutions on the bank of the building.

A Modern Romance With a Charming Heroine

"Why, it's little Rosemary Merton!" cried the fascinating Nina Clark. "Are you shopping?" "I'm looking for a job," answered Rosemary.

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college and living at home, but lack of money prevents her from taking part in college social activities. Philip James, a young man who has been in Japan, comes home and Rosemary welcomes him happily. In the following weeks she imagines he is in love with her, but discovers she is mistaken. She comes home determined to give up college and get a job.

CHAPTER IV.

Mrs. Merton sat in silence and knew, she didn't miss much. There were, Pa and Phil, the pair of them, laughing in the backyard, watching the plants grow, while Rosemary was sitting her heart out to make and she was moving over the stone.

The yellow butter churned under her angry hand. She could drop in her tracks and he'd never see a hand to help her. He said had, even when he was out of work, but he'd never see a hand to help her. Newport Silent on Resignation of Nurse Director and Superintendent

Newport, R. I., Sept. 16.—Were the high spirits and aggressiveness of Miss Janet Fish, former dashing society leader of New York and Newport, too strenuous for the morale of the Newport Hospital?

This question has Newport society as well as Rhode Island medical circles, today, following announcement that Miss Fish had resigned as superintendent of nurses at the Newport hospital, while at the same time the resignation of Dr. Norman C. Baker, superintendent of the hospital, has been accepted.

The trustees of the hospital are maintaining silence, but there is much talk in the circles of the summer colony.

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP).—"The West" attempts to "defeat a large number of dry representatives and senators in Washington, Vermont, New York, Massachusetts, South Carolina, Louisiana, Michigan and Indiana" in every instance in Tuesday's primaries.

Mail Order Love Girl

Cajoled Admirers by Appeals to Appetite

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—A man's heart is in his stomach, so 'tis said, and no one appreciated this any better than Irene L. Steele, of Chester, now sought by the Federal investigating men who charge she is a "mail order love business" swindler.

In practically all of the letters which Irene wrote to gentlemen seeking a mate, there stood forth prominently three promises of the goodies she planned to cook for her husband-to-be.

Irene had a cooking way about her, and her letters carried with them a wealth of recipes, including chicken, turkey, lamb, beef, and fish, and many other dishes.

Under indictment.

And Irene said apparently to be that in the West, where she was, she was the most glibest specimen of mail order girl for all her dupes had about Western States. Just at present search is being conducted for her in Chicago.

In her newspaper advertisements, Irene said she was a "mail order love business" swindler, and she was a "mail order love business" swindler.

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Chicago boxing world, jolted by the recent banning of the Hunkle-Taylor heavyweight title fight, was struck again today by reports that Hunkle, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, has resigned after a final strife with disreputable elements of the boxing game.

Good Food Should Be Standard in All Homes

Budget that No. 123.
By MARTHA LEE.
TODAY we will consider a food budget. No matter what our income, good food well cooked and attractively served without undue cost of material and preparation of successive meals, is one of the pleasures of life. Fresh fruits for instance can well take the place of more elaborate past and puddings.

Simplicity in serving saves the strength of the housewife too. By marketing, keep in mind the waste of time and effort in preparing elaborate meals for the family. Once this is done, a family of four can live on a budget of $10 a week. For a family of five, $12 a week. For a family of six, $14 a week. For a family of seven, $16 a week. For a family of eight, $18 a week. For a family of nine, $20 a week. For a family of ten, $22 a week. For a family of eleven, $24 a week. For a family of twelve, $26 a week. For a family of thirteen, $28 a week. For a family of fourteen, $30 a week. For a family of fifteen, $32 a week. For a family of sixteen, $34 a week. For a family of seventeen, $36 a week. For a family of thirty-one, $64 a week. For a family of thirty-two, $66 a week. For a family of thirty-three, $68 a week. For a family of thirty-four, $70 a week. For a family of thirty-five, $72 a week. For a family of thirty-six, $74 a week. For a family of thirty-seven, $76 a week. For a family of thirty-eight, $78 a week. For a family of thirty-nine, $80 a week. For a family of forty, $82 a week. For a family of forty-one, $84 a week. For a family of forty-two, $86 a week. For a family of forty-three, $88 a week. "You Said It, Marceline!"

THE PERFECT LOVER is a WOMAN'S dream in a MAN'S body. He is kind and a BLAVE. He must be totally BLIND. He must be HER OWN BEATY. He must be UNCONTROLLED. He must be UNWORTHY. He must be READY to die for her.

This Day in Our History

THE Cherokee "Strip," a portion of territory in Oklahoma comprising 6,000,000 acres, was thrown open to the public for free settlement on September 18, 1893. 100,000 persons rushed over the border line seeking sites for homes.

stewed figs, bread and butter.
If sunny turns up his fastidious little nose at baked apples, you have probably been serving a more brown sauce without beauty or taste. One mother always makes these apples for her children. She cooks whole or quartered apples in a stew of two cups of water and one cup of sugar. When partly done, she adds a handful of red clove candies, and serves with a spoonful of ice cream or whipped cream. Pears may be cooked in the same way, and are extra good if sprinkled with coconut.

An Apple Indian pudding is another nourishing dessert which adds the "little red roses" as sugar is called, by and without the usual coating. Now it is dear, without a word, for it is good for you. Soak 4 cups of milk and pour in 1 cup of sugar. Add 1/2 cup of raisins, 1/2 cup of brown sugar, 1/2 cup of butter, 1/2 cup of cornmeal, 1/2 cup of flour, 1/2 cup of cinnamon and nutmeg, and bake in a slow oven for about 3 hours.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

WYVER State has an ordinance against a man taking his wife and children into a saloon and permitting them to leave before the police are called. It says the police are going to start enforcing the law.

AFTER this, no man will be allowed to take his family without a permit.

BOARDERS who want to apologize themselves will have to make out an application.

NOT only that, but they'll have to get a permit from the police.

LANDLORDS can't afford to let their roomers die on credit.

SOME of the beach owners are so strict that if a man wants to drive a car, they make him wear a two-piece suit.

THEY don't object to his dying as long as he has a modest auto.

IF PEOPLE who want to get run over by automobile will have to pay for the traffic bureau.

No man will be allowed to get killed.

As to going to the crossing and waiting in line.

MOTORISTS will also have to wait at the traffic bureau and have their peddlebars assigned to them.

In future this will be a serious offense for a chauffeur to run over a woman.

PEOPLE who want to commit suicide by drinking bun, whiskey or gin and tonics will have to get a license from the Anti Saloon League.

IT'S up to you whether you want to die by the rail, or by the front of your car.

SOME of the stuff you buy now is made in a place where the people don't like to eat. You can't drink it and last you a lifetime.

ONE who said he never took a bath in his life is now in the hospital. He likes plenty of room to bathe.

MEDICAL science claims that there are 4,724 ways of committing suicide and one man was arrested for trying to be married to try them all.

IF WOMAN CHEATING HERSELF

Men declare a masculine writer, suffering from emotional starvation. And all on account of woman's wild ways!

Women, he complains, are becoming hard-boiled, while men are becoming soft-boiled. Chivalry, sentiment, and all the finer and more beautiful phases of love are disappearing.

And he does not think it is his fault. But he does not think it is his fault. But he does not think it is his fault. But he does not think it is his fault.

America's Best Service Is to Teach by Example

By JAMES A. REED
United States Senator from Missouri.

THEIR mark of hypocrisy always at some time slips off. The traitor will eventually make a mistake, and so the truth comes out. It came out last March at Geneva.

When the national met at Geneva, good faith required that they should meet with clean hands and resolve Germany as a permanent member of the council. But they had been playing a game behind the curtain. Their real purpose had been concealed. They wanted to bring Germany in and at the same time they wanted to fix Germany so that she would have no influence when she was in the council.

CARE nothing for the question so far as it concerns the German nation, but I care everything for it because it exposes military, trickery, fraud. It demonstrates that even more in Europe there is the old desire for the supremacy of the great powers. There is the question of the balance of power. That is the same situation that existed in the past, and that I say, in the German mind.

Let us stand aloof. Let us pursue the course of the past, and that is not a selfish course, for the example of the past is the example of the great powers. By example we have led them where by power we could not have forced them.

IT was the spirit that came from the "finest" of Washington's soldiers that lighted the fires of the French Revolution. It was from the French Revolution that the world was gradually illuminated. The English "Commons" rose and by peaceful means destroyed the pretensions of the Crown and established the right of the masses of the people to elect their representatives.

THIR spirit of liberty that I have known here in America has been carried into the hearts of the people of all nations. It is the spirit of all nations. It is the spirit of all nations. It is the spirit of all nations.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It is not by the gray of the hair that one knows the age of the heart.

The happiest lot for a man, as far as birth is concerned, is that he should be such as to give him little occasion to think much about it.

Agitation is the marshalling of the conscience of a nation to mould its law.

Anecdotes and maxims are rich treasure to the man of the world, for he knows how to introduce the former at fit places in conversation, and to recollect the latter on proper occasions.

Ambition is the germ from which all growth of nobleness proceeds.

He who sees civilization, suffers them twice over.

A comical man is all over with the affections of a fine gentleman.

Interesting anecdotes afford examples which may be of use to our own conduct.

Conscience is at most times a very faithful and prudent administrator.

No man should act as he takes advantage of another.

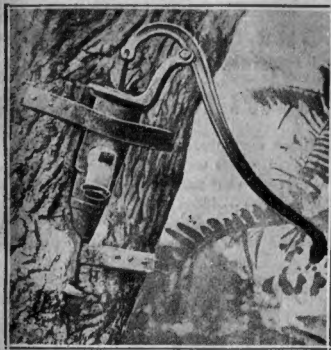

Ambition is the germ from which all growth of nobleness proceeds.

He who sees civilization, suffers them twice over.

A comical man is all over with the affections of a fine gentleman.

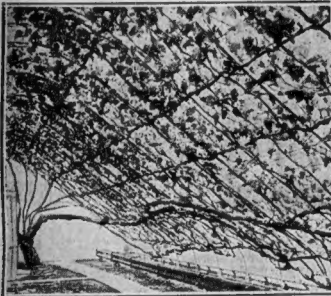

Powerful Nature

It Creates, Destroys, Absorbs

A PUMP AND AN OAK TREE. YOU SEE WHAT HAPPENED TO THE PUMP.

Many years ago this big oak tree was a small oak, big as your arm. A man fastened his pump against the tree. The tree grew, grew around that pump, as it held the metal in its wooden embrace, and growing, the oak lifted the pump five feet above the ground. It was fastened to the tree with strong iron nails. But that didn't bother the tree, as you see in the picture.

A RECORD GRAPEVINE.

This picture of a huge grapevine at Hampton Court, in England, said to break all records—perhaps California will deny that—shows also nature's great power.

From one little grape seed, or from a cutting of a vine, this gigantic vine grew. It carries 600 bunches of grapes. Some of the sad-eyed thirty ones will ask themselves, "How much wine can be made from that one vine?"

Nature CREATES everything and WIPES OUT everything. The solid stone is created in the ground, put into buildings, pyramids that crumble and vanish.

Men and the animals come and go. They come out of the earth, they go back into the earth.

But at least men, WHILE THEY ARE ON THE EARTH, rule the earth, whether they need it or not.

We harness the power of lightning that once frightened us. We put old Niagara to work, men are harnessing the tides that once cast our helpless little boats upon the shore. Nature is great, but intelligence is greater.

Paying French Debt

Many Novel Plans

All sorts of ways have been suggested for France to pay her debts.

One way is for her to give up some territory. But, somehow or other, a nation seems to think it dishonorable to let go of any of her territory, whether she needs it or not.

The most novel proposition, however, is that France should reduce her debt by her wedding rings.

There are some eight million married couples who have wedding rings of gold. As each ring contains about five grains of solid worth twenty francs a gram, that would mean about eight hundred million francs worth of gold which is doing no special good and paying no taxes.

If every couple would give up this adornment, it would seriously reduce the indebtedness of France.

It is, however, much more popular to pass a law proposing to make the foreigner pay the debts of a country than it is to require the inhabitants thereof to pay it.

Government Business

Profit on Ships and Sugar

It is commonly supposed that Government cannot enter into business without losing money.

The recent report of the Wartime Sugar Equalization Board states there is a profit of $41,000,000 on a $5,000,000 investment.

This profit was made from buying and selling sugar in the war, safeguarding the supply and preventing profiteers from cornering the market.

It may be interesting to know also that the Panama Steamship & Railroad Company has always been a money-maker for the Government.

These are two exceptions, at least, to the general rule.

His Own Fault

By O. P. Williams

THE testy gentleman has reason to be worried by the motor-bus, but he can locate the blame in the mirror. He had every chance to develop this new convenience himself, as a complement to his rail lines.

Instead he stood on his dignity, scowled and did nothing until the competition had grown serious. Now he wants the public to save him. The public's reply is a smile.

Odds and Ends of the Town

By BERT FORD

A big slice of life's trouble is due to gossip and slander.

OH YOU AU LAIT

"Fire!" "Who's got a fire extinguisher?" "I'll get an alarm!" LONNIE LAYMAN, who remained cool, he was making ice cream when fire broke out in the kitchen of his 3-10 candy shop at BRANT ROCK. While everybody was running in circles LONNIE called a turn on the town fire department by shouting the famous words with four quarts of milk standing near in a huge can. LONNIE calls from BRANT ROCK. He's so big his friends call him "PEANUT." He would think you friendly if you called him LONNIE.

NEWTON LUTHER BURBANK CAPTAIN JAMES J. MULLEN of NEWTON POLICE department is such a skilled and enthusiastic gardener that he is known as "THIS LUTHER BURBANK OF NEWTON." When off duty, ten-ten-ten you'll find him putting in his vegetable or flower garden in season. His home is at No. 235 Adams street, West Newton. He's so well posted in criminal law that most members of the force, especially the rookies, seek his advice on knotty problems.

FIRE FIGHTING FAMILY CLARENCE RANDOLPH, chief of NEWTON FIRE DEPARTMENT comes from a family of fire-fighters. His dad, WALTER B. RANDOLPH, was chief before him. The son has put the department on an efficient basis. The two-rotation system is said to be on the verge of adoption. CLARENCE launched the FIREMEN'S BALL in Newton and was the first to order members of the force to wear badges on their blouses.

TABLOID If things don't seem to be breaking right, take an account of stock. Individuals must do this as well as firms and corporations in order to be successful. Try working harder and talking less.

DANGER LURKING IN TOO GOOD FOODS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A DOCTOR has recently declared that the health of modern civilized people is threatened by the perfection of their food.

Since man's advent upon the planet for thousands of years he has been compelled to hustle in order to get something to eat. In fact that has been his chief occupation, as it is still with the case of the horse and the ox.

Most of his foods were of an imperfect nature. Fruits and grains contained a good deal of waste matter and meats were eaten sparingly.

Consequently his digestive apparatus was adapted to a great deal of fodder, or waste material.

And now comes the modern era with all sorts of refined foods. The bran is sifted from the flour, and other foods are canned with the waste eliminated. The consequence is that man is afflicted with food in a too concentrated form.

One of the types of food of a most condensed kind is that of sugar, or candy. Those who eat too many sweets are subject to all kinds of complaints.

The tendency to use condensed foods becomes stronger and stronger, and one becomes more and more disinclined to eat vegetables and other forms of food containing much fodder. The result is the impairment of health.

It has even fancifully been proposed to prepare all foods in the form of a pill, and one might take a pill and a drink of water in lieu of eating a meal.

Theoretically this would be ideal. Practically it will not work. The system needs not only the requisite amount of carbohydrates, proteins and fats, together with water, but it also needs those foods which produce vitamins. It needs also what we call "roughness" in feeding cattle; that is, the intestines must be supplied with a certain amount of bulk. The concentrated foods do not supply this. Hence man is afflicted with constipation and many other ills.

Altogether it looks as if the increase in the perfection of foods is not a blessing.

One reason why a horse usually has good health is that he has to walk around generally in order to get anything to eat. A man sits still and his food is brought him, with disastrous consequences.

Philosophy of Work

By GARRETT P. SERVIS

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I HAVE often wondered if large corporations who pay employees an hourly rate expect such employees to keep up a steady pace and not to idle a moment except on business which might be absolutely necessary.

Personally, I get my portion of the work out, but you get there in always some more to be done. This question may seem silly in a sense, but as I have followed up your writings and learned a little more since doing so, I feel that you will be kind enough to reply to my inquiry.—G. P. D., Chicago.

I think that large corporations become and remain large because they act upon a profound knowledge of human nature and natural law. Consciously or not, their founders and managers are excellent psychologists, physiologists and physiologists.

They understand practically the workings of the mind, the possibilities of physical performance, and the limitations of the body machine.

Wherever that is so they do not demand more of any workman than normally he should be able to perform. They know that even a mere mechanic's separate routine work is a product of freedom from interference if it is to be work effectively.

They know, too, that a machine seems to get tired sometimes, and to lose interest in its work. It is so with men. It is when it needs oiling, it is everything that a man does in the mind, even if subconsciously.

And in the performance of physical work the mind of the worker supplies the oil that keeps the machine running smoothly. The thinking machine is the best one.

Even though he may pause for a moment occasionally to appreciate his thoughts, the man who works in parallel lines with the body, but with the mind, is a machine.

Under normal conditions the mind, supervising the operation of the hands, both stimulates and coordinates the work. It is so even in operations that seem to be purely automatic. Let me suggest, however, that you keep trying long enough, we will find some movement in the mind, and the body will follow.

It Is Not America's Job to Bully China

The chaos called China may be viewed in two ways. The short view is one of intense exasperation. White pride is galled when a long-exploited yellow people, whom a show of force could formerly overawe, shows a growing spirit of resistance.

With the galling naturally comes bitterness, especially among the British, foremost in the ancient pastime of putting and keeping the Chinese under a yoke.

We are, therefore, not surprised that British exasperation is aimed in part at the United States. The New York World's London correspondent puts it frankly:

"American refusal to adopt British views as to the proper steps to protect the interests of the great Powers in China is held to hamstringing British policy and make for more chaos and disorder since, in the British view, unless the white nations hang together in China the Chinese may soon make a general onslaught on foreign interests."

Though why this country should be expected to discard its traditions of fair dealing in order to help the British to bully China is not clear.

In the longer view the disturbances through which China is passing are products of a racial awakening which force could not prevent, but which might be made more terrible by white men's interference.

Britain, having over many decades tried the policy of bullying and found it at the last ineffective, might now wisely adopt the official American course, which rather, timidly it is to let the Chinese work out their own salvation.

Italy and Opium

A Timely Service

Italy has performed a timely service in refusing to ratify the Geneva opium convention of last year.

That pact dodged the real issue and set up a decoy. There is just one way to strike at the vials of the dope evil. It is for the nations to agree to limit the production of habit-forming drugs to medical and scientific needs.

But at Geneva the nations refused to do this. Instead they created an advisory committee made up of representatives of States chiefly guilty of overproduction.

It was as if a jury of thieves had been chosen to pass on theft.

Mussolini, the realist, refuses to be a party to such house pious. Americans applaud his candor.

The way is now clear for the United States to call another opium conference and put every quibbling diplomat under the spotlight.

Some day world opinion will force the dodging politicians to toe the mark on this vital question so deeply affecting human welfare.

Basic Americanism

That was sound American doctrine the younger Theodore Roosevelt propounded in Waterville, Me.:

"We are willing and anxious to help other countries when so doing is of real benefit to them and does not injure this country, but will meet each question as it arises and will not place our children in pawn to any foreign Powers."

America first! America first! It was so in the beginning. So it shall remain.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A FRIEND has called my attention to the beautiful poem by Irene P. McKeehan, published in the Century Magazine. It is called CLOSING THE DOOR.

I have closed the door on Doubt; I will go by what light I can find, And hold up my hands, and reach them out.

To the glimmer of God in the dark, and call: "I am thirsty, though I grope and stumble and fall. I serve; and thy service is kind."

I have closed the door on Fear. He held with me too long and tight. If he were to break faith and reappear.

I would lift my eyes and look at the sky. And sing aloud and run lightly by. He will never follow a door.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

I have closed the door on Gloom. They have helped me, I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me. I am sure they will help me.

many Christians, the founder of Christianity was also strong for evil. If there was any Polynesian nation which would have rid life of evil and loneliness and pain, certainly didn't use it. It took all his strength. He believed in God, and talked to him all the time. But he did not preach that. He preached that we should be like him. He realized that it was quite often extremely hard and painful and the build the doublet and the stiff proper to him. He was the noblest saint that ever walked high-backed to his death. It's time we civilized mortals began to copy a little of his spirit. If we don't like his pattern, how about Moses or Buddha, or Mahatma? Or even the very human founders of this country. Great men have never sought any extra.
